Introduction

Hello, I’m David Sunfellow, founder and president of NewHeavenNewEarth, or NHNE, a small internet-based non-profit located in Sedona, Arizona.

Based on 40 years of near-death experience research, this video provides compelling, authoritative answers to life’s big questions: Who are we? Where are we from? Why are we here?

Along with summarizing the core truths presented by near-death experiences, this presentation also tackles issues that have confounded philosophers and traumatized spiritual seekers for ages.

It also offers a tsunami of inspiring, clear, practical advice for how to live happier, healthier lives.

In short, this presentation is a gold mine, full of information that can change your life, the lives of those you love, and the planet we share.
Near-death experiences are a global phenomenon.

To date, MILLIONS of people, from all walks of life and all corners of the planet, have had near-death experiences and MILLIONS more (perhaps billions) have heard about them.

Here are a few statistics.

A 1982 survey indicated that 15 percent of the U.S. population had experienced an NDE. At current population rates, that works out to 48,000,000 Americans.

A 1992 survey indicated that 5 percent of the U.S. population had a near-death experience.

A 2001 survey indicated that 4 percent of the German population had an NDE.

And, finally, a 2005 survey indicated that almost 9 percent of the Australian population had a near-death experience.

If we apply these statistics to the world as a whole, then between 4 and 15 percent of the world’s population may have experienced NDEs. At current population rates, that works out to between 292 million and over 1 billion people.

Vast numbers of people, in other words, are having near-death experiences.

As more people are willing to share these experiences, and modern resuscitation techniques become more effective, these numbers are expected to rise.

What have we learned from these experiences? After 40 years of research, and thousands of documented experiences, are there any core truths that are the same for people everywhere?

The answer is: Yes.

Let’s quickly review two major sources: Dr. Jeffrey Long’s groundbreaking research, which was published in “Evidence of the Afterlife” and “The Handbook of Near-Death Experiences: 30 Years of Investigation”, by Jan Holden, Bruce Greyson, and Debbie James.

Based on 1,300 cases, Dr. Long’s study is the largest NDE study ever conducted. His discoveries are summarized in the following three handouts: “The Twelve Elements of NDEs,” “Nine Lines of Evidence,” and “NDE Aftereffects.” Links to Dr. Long’s book and all three of these handouts are included in the reference materials that accompany this presentation.

Book: “Evidence of the Afterlife”
http://astore.amazon.com/newheavenneweart/detail/0061452556

“Evidence of the Afterlife” - 3-Page Handout (pdf)

The Near-Death Experience Research Foundation (NDERF)
http://www.nderf.org

You can also learn more about Dr. Long’s work by visiting his website, or watching my first NDE video, “How Near-Death Experiences Are Changing The World.”

How Near-Death Experiences Are Changing The World
http://the-formula.org/resources/how-near-death-experiences-are-changing-the-world/

So what universal truths did Dr. Long’s research reveal?
"The core NDE experience is the same all over the world. Whether it’s a near-death experience of a Hindu in India, a Muslim in Egypt, or a Christian in the United States, the same core elements are present in all, including out-of-body experience, tunnel experience, feelings of peace, beings of light, a life review, reluctance to return, and transformation after the NDE. In short, the experience of dying appears similar among all humans, no matter where they live."

"The results of the Near-Death Experience Research Foundation (NDERF) study... finds that what people discovered during their near-death experience about God, love, afterlife, reason for our earthly existence, earthly hardships, forgiveness, and many other concepts is strikingly consistent across cultures, races, and creeds.”

While Dr. Long’s research focuses on contemporary near-death experiences, NHNE Pulse has a resource page that explores historical and cross-cultural near-death experiences. This page also includes contemporary accounts from all over the world, including Buddhist, Moslem, Hindu, and Jewish accounts, and accounts from early human civilization.

Historical & Cross-Cultural Near-Death Experiences
http://the-formula.org/historical-cross-cultural-near-death-experiences/

“The Handbook of Near-Death Experiences” also examines NDEs from around the world, past and present. Editor Dr. Jan Holden concluded that the central message of near-death experiences can be boiled down to two words: Loving and Learning.

The Handbook of Near-Death Experiences
http://astore.amazon.com/newheavenneweart/detail/0313358648

This is especially important because these two words — loving and learning — are directly related to the two most powerful aspects of near-death experiences:
Encounters with The Light and The Life Review.

2. Ineffable, Contradictory, and Moons Made of Cheese

Before we explore the core truths presented by near-death experiences, we need to understand that these experiences are impossible to describe. At our current level of development, we simply do not possess the ability to describe the places and states of consciousness that are visited.

In addition, the experiences themselves often appear contradictory. For example:

On the one hand, near-death experiences insist that everything, and everyone, is perfect, just the way it is. There are no mistakes and everything is unfolding exactly as intended.

On the other hand, near-death experiences also insist that everything is NOT perfect. You and I are not perfect. The world is not perfect. All creation is learning, growing, and evolving.

How can we resolve such contradictions?

By learning to think in new ways.

What kind of cheese is the moon made of?

NDEr Amy Call (video):

“I remember moving into a different space. From my background — where I come from — there is a lot of black and white: This is this. That’s that. This is what’s good. This is what’s evil. This is right. This is wrong. This is the correct political way. This is the correct religion. This is not. So it came to me as I saw another person who I felt this mentor quality [from] — Oh, I can ask. So I went to this person... and I remember coming up to him and I didn’t even need to start spitting out my question even telepathically. As soon as my mind thought of how I wanted to get an answer on “What’s the true religion?” I immediately was inside his mind. It was like I could see myself from his place, but also from his higher level of wisdom and experience. And an interesting thing happened where I was able to experience from his place me coming up and wondering “What’s the true religion?” And I could feel his mind, how he understood me. And from his place it was as if a little kid came up and said “Which kind of cheese is the moon made of? Jack,
Cheddar, or Swiss?” He was really sweet about it. He didn’t even really answer me. In fact, there was something I understood there to be about respecting how we want to see things. So even if I thought “The moon is made out of Swiss cheese” I think they would have been like [OK]. I don’t know that they would have said “yes” or “no”. I can’t say because I didn’t stay there. I came back.

“When this little thing happened and he kind of smiled at me, and it was just sweet — he wasn’t making fun of me or saying you’re such a silly little toddler — he just smiled and I remember his head sightly bowing and this love emanating from him. To experience myself from his view, it blew everything — my whole foundation, everything I had come from — it kind of just pulled it out from under me because now I’m going “Oh, wow, the moon is not even made of cheese!” Not that I thought that, but it was like it’s not even about religion... And yet from his place there was this peacefulness about it so I didn’t have to really freak out because I could feel from his place what that was.”

To summarize:

• Many of our concepts are half-baked, immature, and childish

• It is understood that we need childish concepts to grow

• We are deeply loved, honored and adored regardless of our level of development

So open your mind. Relax. Breathe. And remember as Dorothy from The Wizard of Oz might say: "We're not in Kansas anymore!"
3. The First Universal Spiritual Path

There’s a new kid in town.

For ages, the goal of many people on the spiritual path has been to experience enlightenment, cosmic consciousness, or non-dual states of awareness.

While NDEs honor and include non-dual states of consciousness, they insist that we came to this world for something more.

We came here to grow, evolve, and develop; to turn pancake batter into pancakes.

The analogy is that in the beginning, we were all one big bowl of pancake batter. But once we get poured out onto the grill of creation, we transform into something new and different: pancakes. We are still made of the same basic substance, but whereas before we had no personal identity, now we are unique expressions of God.

That’s one way to describe why we came to this world. Let’s listen now to several near-death experiencers.

NDEr Ryan Rampton (video):

“I want to talk to you today about why we came to this earth. These are things I learned in heaven. So number one, why did we come here? What is our purpose? Did we come here to be tested and tried and try to prove how righteous we are to God; keep a list of commandments or things like this? Is that why we came here? No. That is not why we came here. We came here for one thing. And that was to learn about ourselves. That’s it. We came to find out who you are and how you respond to different things.
“So for example one of the main things we came here [for] was to learn joy. We didn’t know what joy was before. When we were up in heaven, we knew one thing. We knew love. That’s what God was. And we learned different concepts and we learned how to do different things, but we didn’t know joy and we wanted to know joy. God told us: the only way to know joy is to know sorrow. So we had to come down to this physical realm that He made so that we could learn about sorrow so that we can have joy.

“So we’re not down here to prove anything to God. We’re not down here to earn His love. We’re not down here to do certain things to make ourselves righteous in His eyes. All those things are great, all those things are awesome, but that’s not why we came down here. We came down here to experience opposition. We came down here to feel the opposite.

“For example, we would never know what a great health felt like if you’d never been sick. You would never know what a wonderful day in Hawaii would be if you didn’t live in a winter environment. You’d go to Hawaii in the middle of the winter and you’re going ‘Yeah, this is awesome!’ And the guy on the beach that’s local is like ‘What’s the big deal, man? It’s this way every day.’

“So it’s the opposition that defines us. It’s the space between things that creates form. All of these things need each other. We need opposition to even know who we are.

“For example, when the Lord showed me my spirit, before I came to this earth, I saw this amazing, glorious, just breathtakingly beautiful, amazing warrior. The armament, and the clothing, and the raiment that I had on was so amazing and I was just breathtaking to behold. So I come down here and I end up being in this little, sick, weak body that spends the first seven years of its life in an oxygen tent, clinging on to life. I was skinny and scrawny up till even when I got married my wife actually weighed more than I did. She was 118 pounds and I was 115 pounds. So I learned what it was like to be weak. I learned what it was like to have shame. I learned what it was like to have all these things. This opposition made me into who I am today. Even the mistakes I’ve made. Even all the bad things I’ve done in my life. All the sins. All the terrible things. They helped form me into who I am today.”

NDEr Anita Moorjani (quote):

"When we are formless, we cannot know physical love, pleasure, and so on. We are in a state of unconditional love, so we cannot know what it’s like to miss someone, and we cannot even know our selves. We need to be here, in this physical self, to really know who we are. We chose to come here to know who we are."

NDEr Rachel E (quote):

"Our purpose here is to be separated from the oneness. We are here to feel pain. To feel the loneliness. To truly understand how difficult it is to be separated from G*sd. In our struggles to love, live, and cherish we get to do something new that can’t be done when there is only peace, light, and love. Here we have the light and dark. Both..."

NDEr Mellen-Thomas Benedict (quote):

"God gave everything to us, everything is here -- this is where it's at. And what we are into now is God’s exploration of God through us. People are so busy trying to become God that they ought to realize that we are already God and God is becoming us. That's what it is really about. When I realized this, I was finished with The Void, and wanted to return to this creation..."

NDEr Anne Horn (video):

“He looked down at me and he said, ‘you’re not supposed to be here. It’s not time for you to be here.’

“And I remember looking up at him and saying, ‘but I want to be here’... With all my heart, I wanted to be there. I wanted to go home. I was happy.

“And he took a pause and... you could see him thinking about something and deciding whether to say something. And with that... there was a picture placed in my head of a memory of my original agreement of why I had come to Earth to begin with. It was like I remembered and I went, ‘Oh, right. Right...’

“One of the things that bothers me so tremendously about the metaphysical movement, in lieu of my experience and in lieu of what I was shown... if there is any message I can give, it’s not about meditating and leaving your body and taking your Light Being out of this Earth. Indeed, not. It is about bringing the Light into this Earth. Stay here. Be an anchor. Let the Light come in through you into this world. Don’t abandon this world. We need you. We need you here. We need you to be present. And we need you to be open, with an open heart... Everybody must be open. To bring this new age in, it is about opening your heart and letting it sing through you. It is coming! And it is a matter of all of us. Just open your heart and let It come in. Don’t leave. Don’t meditate and think this place is a bad place and we’re going to get out of here. This is a wonderful place. And it’s going to get even more wonderful. You’re here to anchor the Light so It can come into this dimension and be here.”

However you say it, the main point is that something special is happening in the created universe. This is where the action is; this is where we want to be.

It's more about expressing our Divine Natures in the created universe, than waking up and getting out.

And apparently "The Program" is not optional.

NDEs are full of people who have been forced to return to this world when they didn't want to. While they desperately wanted to stay in blissful states of consciousness, the universe (and their souls) insisted that they return.

What does this mean for you and me?

It means that you and I may not be able to leave this world until we acquire the experiences we came here for.

Which means it's probably a good idea to learn as much as we can about "The Program."

The program or plan that underpins all life has been with us since the beginning of time, but until now it has only been seen in fragments.

Unlike spiritual paths that emerged from the visions of singular human beings, the path presented by near-death experiences is emerging as a direct, grassroots revelation that millions of people from all over the world are receiving and sharing.

For the first time in human history the pieces to the great puzzle of life are finally assembling themselves.
4. Some of the Core Truths Presented by NDEs

When near-death experiences are examined as a whole it becomes clear that they are profoundly interested in integrating our spiritual and human natures. The two great themes that Dr. Jan Holden identified -- loving and learning – echo this insight. These themes are also dramatically illustrated by encounters with The Light and The Life Review.

Encounters with The Light are the most transformative aspect of near-death experiences.

The experience of being fully known and loved unconditionally and basking in a universe made of love changes everyone who experiences it.

The Life Review is the second most transformative experience.

Reliving the intimate details of our lives and seeing how everything we said, thought, and did affected others also dramatically changes those who experience it.

With few exceptions, God and God's messengers are not the ones judging us during life reviews.

We judge ourselves.

What God and God's messengers do provide is love, understanding, and compassion.

They also point out things that we might otherwise overlook.

While near-death experiences come wrapped in many different packages, the underlying themes and truths are the same around the world.

The reason NDEs are so different on the surface is that they are filtered through the minds, emotions, beliefs, and developmental level of the person who experiences them.

Most NDErs report that The Light or God-like Being they encounter is a distinct, sentient Being.
It not only loves them personally, wholeheartedly, and unconditionally, but It also knows absolutely everything about them.

After our bodies die, we continue to experience ourselves as distinct beings.

We may also experience being one with God and the rest of creation.

This includes feeling all-knowing and all powerful.

We are all one.

Literally.

And we should act accordingly...

NDE Researcher Kenneth Ring (video):

“I think this is one of the most remarkable aspects of the near-death experience and one that is not really given the amount of attention that it should. Obviously many people know about The Light, they know about [the] out-of-body experience. The thing that really is, I think, important about the near-death experience in regard to the life review phenomena is that it isn’t just a life review. It’s a reliving of your life... When people describe the full experience, it’s every single act that you have done, every single thought that you have thought, every single word that you have spoken — suddenly all of this is back with you. You are running through it again and you see and you experience the effects of these acts, these thoughts, and these words on other people. Let me just give you one brief example to illustrate this.

“I have a friend who when growing up was kind of a roughneck; he had a hot temper; he was always getting into scrapes. One day he was driving in his truck through the suburb in the town where he lived and he almost hit a pedestrian. And he got very aggravated with the pedestrian and he was a very big physical guy — still is — and a fight ensued. He punched this guy out and left him unconscious on the pavement, got back into his truck, and roared off.

“15 years later this guy has a near-death experience... and during the near-death experience, he has a life review. In his life review, this particular scene of the fight takes place again... And he said that, as many people do, he kind of experienced this from a dual aspect. There was a part of him that was almost as if he were high up in a building looking out a window and seeing the fight below. But at the same time he was observing the fight like a spectator, he found himself in the fight. Except this time he found himself in the role of the other person. And he felt all 32 blows that he had rained on this person originally 15 years ago now being inflicted upon himself. He felt his teeth cracking. He felt the blood in his teeth. He felt everything that this other person must have felt at that particular time. There was a complete role reversal; an empathic life review experience.

“And this is the sort of thing that many people report. And when they report these kinds of experiences, they realize that in our life, we are the very people that we hurt; we are the very people that we help to feel good. We experience these actions as though done to ourselves in the life review. So that when people start talking about The Golden Rule in the context of the near-death experience, The Golden Rule is not just a precept for moral conduct, it’s the way it works. And you experience this during the life review. You learn that lesson in a very forceable way as a result of going through this kind of experience. And that’s why when people have NDEs they change as much as they do! If you can even imagine what it must be like to go through your entire life and see everything that you’ve ever done, without judgment, but from a kind of almost omniscient point of view with regard to the effects of those actions, and see what your actions do to other people, it’s a heavy kind of lesson. It’s something that stays with you and it informs your conduct for the time after your near-death experience.

“So it does give us a lot to think about and that’s why I say in my book "Lessons from the Light" the near-death experience isn't given just to those who have the experience, it's given to all of us to learn from because all of us can profit by the lessons that near-death experiencers learn in the course of a life review or other aspects of their experience. We can grow from these lessons. We can apply these lessons into our daily lives.”

Our intensions are more important than what we say and do.

Our actions affect the entire universe.

The little things are the big things...

NDEr Reinee Pasarow (video):

“This recounting for the deeds of one’s life is not like what you would think at all in terms of this life. Because what was important were the choices that I made. And what was more important than the choices I made, were my motivations and my intent, and really the state of my heart in doing any single action...

“I experienced in a holographic awareness that was instantaneous how every action that one takes is like a stone cast in the water. And if it's loving, that stone... goes out and touches the first person that it's intended for and then it touches another person and then it touches another person because that person interacts with other people. And so on and so on. And every action has a reverberating effect upon every single one of us on the face of this planet. So if I had committed a loving action, it was like love upon love upon love. A purely loving action was the most wonderful thing that I could ever have achieved in my life. This had more meaning than to have been a Rockefeller, or president of the United States, or to have been a great scientist, and to have invented something just incredible. If I had committed a truly pure and loving action, it had reverberated throughout the stuff of every individual on the planet and I felt... that action reverting through them and through myself. And I felt this in a way that is beyond... what we can feel on this plane of existence.

“So the significance of one’s actions totally changed. What was not important was anything that I had owned or known intellectually (there is a sense of intellectual pride — not that knowledge is bad, knowledge is good), but what was important was the purity and motivation of every action.

“And I recall the most important of my actions was an instant I would never have recalled except for the near-death experience. Many years ago I had worked every summer as a volunteer with retarded children. There was a day camp that went on and I spend all summer going every day, eight hours a day, to this day camp. And there was a child, one time... I had taken a child aside on a very hot day. And this was not a charming or a particularly lovable child. But I wanted this child to feel loved. I wanted this child to feel, really, the love of God that brought him into existence and that brought us all into existence. I took him aside, although I wasn't religiously motivated, formally; I just wanted him to feel love. I took him aside and gave him something to drink and just spent some time with him. And he was very agitated, but I just wanted him to feel that love. And that was the greatest of all actions. And that filled me with unspeakable and incomprehensible joy. And it was not an action that anyone noticed. And it was not an action that I even recalled. And it was not an action that I had done with any thought of reward. It was simply an action motivated by love. By selfless love. And this had great meaning...”

We all need to love ourselves as deeply as God loves us.

We also need to understand that we can’t love ourselves as deeply as God does until we have personally experienced God’s love for us.

So how can we connect with God so we can experience His/Her/Its love for us?

Near-death experiences suggest there are many very powerful things that we can do to connect, including:

1. Imagine God loves us (and treat ourselves accordingly)

2. Love and serve others

3. Pray and meditate

4. Feel and express gratitude
5. See the humor in life

6. Tell the truth (to ourselves and others)

7. Spend quality time in nature

8. Spend time with others who have experienced The Light

9. Embrace threshold experiences (birth, death, and other portal-opening events)

10. Study NDEs (and related phenomena)

All these activities help lift us into the presence of God, which helps us feel God’s love.

Once we feel God’s love for us, we naturally love ourselves and others, which, in turn, helps us experience even more of God’s love.

Many near-death experiencers report that God has a delightful sense of humor.

So do God’s representatives.

They encourage us to follow their example...

Did you hear the one about the two cable guys?

NDEr Amy Call (video):

“I remember after my experience I had the simplest situation where two cable guys showed up at my house... What I discovered was the Divine having a sense of humor. Things are funny. The two cable guys show up at the house and they were wearing their uniforms for work and they were there to hook up the cable for the TV. My husband had made an appointment and he had to go to work right after my NDE... (He) was very busy taking, care of the family, and so I was at home in this state with kids just trying to figure out how to function. And the cable guys show up and when I opened the door I saw them how the Divine sees them and I couldn’t stop laughing. I was trying not to be rude but to me they looked like — if you imagine little kids going into the closet and trying clothes on and trying to look really serious and showing up at the door and be like ‘We’re the cable guys’. I can’t describe it. I was like ‘Oh, OK.’ I brought them in and they were just really serious about their job like ‘We’re here to hook up the TV’. To me it was just so funny because I was so disconnected from things like watching TV, and watching football, or sitcoms... I just didn’t realize that this appointment was coming and while they were hooking it up, they were asking me really simple questions like ‘OK, so what channel do you want? Do you want ESPN? Do you want the cartoon channel?’ Everything they were asking me was busting me up.
“I got to where I felt like I was being rude because they have an important job. There’s nothing that isn’t important. Everything that people do is part of their own vital experience and it’s all beautiful really. It’s just that it felt totally different to me. I had to actually — I told them I’m really sorry; I think I’m sick or something. And one of the guys said, ‘Did you take some NyQuil?’ And I was wiping the tears and blowing my nose and I finally said, ‘You know what, you guys can hook up anything you want because I need to leave the room.’ And so I had to leave because I knew at some point it was going to look like I was being rude…

“I saw people from then on the way we see toddlers when they’re playing. I see that despite how we age here — we get older and we take ourselves seriously and we think, you know, I have this important thing I’m doing — but the Divine is like: ‘Lighten up. It’s OK, you can lighten up.’ And I tend to be so serious from what I came from. I worry so much. I thought things were so serious and I wanted to please God and I prayed so much and now through the Divine I was seeing that it’s totally OK to just have fun and laugh. I was laughing so much, I was wheezing…”

Are we taking ourselves too seriously?

What kind of funny costumes are you dressing up in?

Heavenly Humor
http://the-formula.org/heavenly-humor/

Everyone has a unique purpose in life.

Our happiness and well-being depend on us fulfilling our part in the grand scheme of things.

It is, therefore, very important to be ourselves and not try to be someone else.

Near-death experiences contain endless accounts of spiritual beings and angels.

Many report that we all have guardian angels who look after us.

While these beings are present all the time, their help is especially effective when we consciously ask for it.
NDEr Emmanuel Swedenborg (quote):

"Angels and spirits are really with us. I have been allowed to see this thousands of times..."

NDEr Lorna Byrne (video):

“Near-death experiences occur to different people all across the world and it is in order to help us to have more faith, to believe that there is more to life; that we’re not just flesh and blood; that we have a soul.

“The only way that I can help you out there is to share one of my near-death experiences. That was a time when I was pregnant and the Archangel Michael told me that my baby was going to die; that I wasn’t going to give birth to a live child. The day that happened, I died as well. My soul lifted out of my body carrying, in my arms, the soul of my baby and I went to heaven. It was just like this beautiful tunnel that twisted or spiraled like a staircase and it was full of angels — glowing white angels. They were literally everywhere, all around me.

“As I moved along, all of a sudden this beautiful white angel stood right in front of me and she had her arms out and she said: ‘Lorna, you weren’t meant to come with your baby.’ And I just looked at my baby and looked at her and I said: ‘I love my baby. I want to stay.’ And she said I couldn’t. I have to go back.

“As she was just so, so beautiful and just seeing her hands as she moved forward to take my baby and myself having to give my baby to her reluctantly — I loved my baby; I wanted to stay. And I always remember she saying to me look back and turn around. And looking back and seeing my husband, Joe, and my other children and he shaking me and saying ‘don’t die on me!’ And even seeing them, I still wanted to stay there in heaven because in heaven you can do so much more for those you love on Earth. In Heaven you’re just — oh, how can I explain it — you don’t feel any pain; there’s just so much joy and love you feel within yourself; you’re just so, so perfect. And you don’t want to go back.

“And she just said to me again: ‘Lorna, you have to go back.’ And I knew I had to, but yet I didn’t want to. And all of a sudden I heard God speak in an authoritative voice saying I have to go back, I have to return.

“At that moment, the angel, so gentle and lovingly, reached in and took my baby from me. And just seeing my baby at that moment turn and look at me and smile and his beautiful blue eyes, I always remember that. And then him looking towards the angel, smiling, and his little arms going up, slightly, in that way, and the angel taking him. And at the same moment, I went back to my human body.”
NDEr Mark Kirk (video):

U.S. Senator Mark Kirk: What happened — I went downtown and was at Northwestern Memorial in the ICU, underwent three brain surgeries where the issue was brain swelling which would create such a pressure on the lower brain stem and could be fatal. My doctors said without the procedure I would have been dead within three days. I do remember waking up in the ICU not exactly knowing where I was. Probably it was a pharmacological event. I think there was a lot of that in my system.

Reporter: I read in the Daily Herald today about angels. Did you feel as if there were angels there?

U.S. Senator Mark Kirk: I did. I felt like there were three angels in the room. And interestingly, they had New York accents, probably because the last movie I’d seen was on Channel 11, was the original Oceans 11, the brat pack movie... They were there in the ICU. They probably have a regular gig there because of the issues.

Reporter: Right. Right. And yet you said, “No, not yet...”

U.S. Senator Mark Kirk: Yeah, and they said, “Mark, you want to come with us. You know you can come with us if you want.” Complete New York accent. The way they introduced themselves, they said, “Mark, uh, we’re angels; we’re angels down here.” And established that simpatico thing. “You want to come with us?” I said, “No, I’ll hold off.”

NDEr Howard Storm (video):

“My final argument — this was the biggie; this was the ace I’ve been keeping up my sleeve — I said, ‘you can’t send me back.’

“And they said “why?”

“And I said... ‘I’ve never known anybody that loved me like you did, I’ve never known anybody that knew me like you do because you know me better than I know me... if you send me back, it will kill me. I will die of a broken heart.’

‘And they said, ‘you’re not paying attention. Has there been a moment in your life when we have ever been a part from you, when you have ever been alone or separate from us?’

“And I went, ‘No, but like I never saw you, I never talked to you, I never felt you. Is it going to be like that when I go back?’

“And they said it’s going to be exactly like that.
“And I said, ‘well, it’s kind of like being alone when you can’t see, hear, taste, touch the person that’s with you. They’re not there. It feels lonely... That would kill me, in loneliness, to be a part from you.’

“And they said, ‘there is a way to get in touch with us.’

“And I said, ‘how do you do that?’

“And they said, ‘be still, get quiet, talk to us, tell us everything you want to say. Then be really quiet and still and invite our love into your heart and you’ll know that we are right there and you’ll know our love right there.’

“This works. It really works.

“Get it all out. Tell them everything... I bet you don’t believe that God, Jesus, the angels want to know the trivia of your life. You’re wrong. They want to know. They want to know everything. They want to know your hopes, your fears, your mistakes, your successes. When you get through that — whatever it is that comes out of our mind, that comes out of your heart — and you give it up to God — it’s just sort of clearing the decks so that you can listen. That’s why you are doing this because they already know all this stuff... After you’ve cleared the decks, listen, feel, open your heart up...”

Angels aren't the only ones invisible to human eyes. The unseen world is teeming with life.

One analogy is to imagine the earth and the physical universe is one channel on a radio. While we are incarnated in this world, most of what we see and hear is played on this one station. But there are trillions of other channels. These are the wild, wonderful, and sometimes frightening stations that near-death experiencers tune into when they leave this world.

What do they see and learn?
Loved ones and relatives, from the past, present, and future, are all present.

Many of these beloved beings keep an eye on us while we journey through this world.

On the other side of life, EVERYTHING is alive.

Animals (including beloved pets), flowers, trees, mountains, planets, stars -- even the light that forms celestial domains -- is conscious, sentient, and communicative.

Many NDErs report that music, of indescribable beauty, is everywhere.

NDErs also report that there are schools, and communities, and great gatherings of souls engaged in all kinds of activities.

The physical universe is also teeming with life.

There is life on other worlds and in other dimensions.

Life appears in a vast multitude of exotic forms.

The world is a dream.

So, too, is the rest of the physical universe.

Time and space are illusions.

Among other things, this means the past, present, and future are all happening now.

This means we can communicate with past, present, and future realities now. And change them. And learn from them. And do many other strange and wonderful things.

As a side note, many NDErs return with a profound interest in quantum physics.

When viewed from the perspective of God even the most awful events serve a glorious purpose.

Life, in other words, is perfect. And beautiful. No one is lost. All woundings, injuries, and injustices are temporary and transitory. All is well.

Excerpt from Desiderata by Max Erhmann (quote):

"Whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should..."
All obstacles and setbacks; all tragedies and traumas; all terrors, torments, and suffering; are blessings in disguise. When we embrace them and learn the lessons they come to teach, they transform into pearls of great price.

Many NDErs experience miraculous healings.

We should, therefore, live our lives knowing that miracles are possible -- and inevitable -- when we connect with God, God's messengers, and the Divine parts of Ourselves.

Our thoughts and feelings create our realities.

We should, therefore, learn to monitor, and consciously direct, the inner chatter that fills our heads and hearts.

Near-death experiences are very, very clear on this: Deep down, we all know exactly what's happening and what our true motivations are. While we can deceive ourselves and others in this world, deception is not possible in the next.

Since we are all held accountable for everything we think and do, it is better to see the truth, speak the truth, and live the truth now, than wait for a life review to reveal all the sneaky things we did when we thought no one was looking.

Work on shadow issues.

Relationships with others are where shadows emerge most fully.

Dreams are a fantastic tool for helping us identify and work through shadow issues.
Dreams

http://the-formula.org/dream-basics/

NDEr Cami Renfrow (quote):

“Examine your shadow fearlessly, bringing your unconscious energies into new relationship and alignment with the whole. When we can lovingly recognize our dark and light, and respect the information brought to us by our dark, our flaws, our challenges, our pain, we can begin to channel the energies more effectively and put their power to work for us.”

Between 1 and 15 percent of near-death experiencers report having a hellish or distressing experience.

The statistics we have on this are shaky because many people who have hellish or distressing experiences don't want to talk about them.

While some near-death experiencers don't believe hellish realms exist, when you study NDEs as a whole it becomes clear that both heavenly realms and hellish ones not only exist, but exist as BOTH states of consciousness AND places in consciousness.

Denying that hellish realms exist doesn't make them less real or less frightening to those who experience them. Denying the reality of these realms does, however, encourage those who experience them not to share their experiences. In such cases, the people who need help the most don't receive it.

Both hellish realms and heavenly ones are created by individuals and collections of individuals who are vibrating at similar levels of development.

Many near-death experiencers who report hellish or distressing experiences tend to be excessively materialistic, selfish and self-centered, and/or engage in brazenly self-destructive activities.

They also tend to discount, or feel disconnected from, God and other spiritual realities. This includes people who appear to be spiritually motivated, but are really using spiritual and religious trappings to pursue selfish and materialistic goals, such as acquiring money, power and adoring followers.
In other words, people who tend to be overly focused on the material world and/or overly disconnected from their spiritual natures, appear to be more likely to experience hellish NDEs.

Being overly selfish and materialistic are not the only things that can produce hellish experiences.

We might also find ourselves in hellish realms by forcing the doors to other realities open by using drugs and other consciousness-expanding techniques.

Visits to hellish realms might also occur naturally as learning and testing experiences or phases in a purification process.

Although rare, young children can also experience hellish near-death experiences.

Whatever causes hellish and distressing NDEs it is important to remember that these experiences can be exceedingly traumatizing to those who experience them.

We can help by being compassionate, and non-judgmental.

We can also help by encouraging people to share their stories so we can learn more.

For the record, near-death experiences indicate that God is not sending anyone to hell.

We create our own hells -- and heavens -- by the way we live our lives; by the thoughts we think, the emotions we express, the way we treat ourselves and others.

Whatever we think and do in this world is reflected back to us a thousandfold in the afterlife.

This means that heavenly experiences, and hellish ones, and everything in between, are mega-super-hyper REAL when compared to this world.

Many NDErs who visited hell discovered that the way out was to call out to The Divine for help.

The Power of Prayer
http://the-formula.org/the-power-of-prayer/
Some NDErs also report that learning how to observe hellish situations without reacting to them emotionally can break their spell and allow us to move on to other realms and experiences.

GOOD TO KNOW: What is true for hellish realms in the afterlife is also true for hellish places and states of consciousness in this world (calm down, observe, ask the Divine for help).

Finally, while this presentation focuses on classic near-death experiences there are many other spiritual experiences that allow people to experience similar things, including:

- Near-Death-Like Experiences
- Shared-Death Experiences
- Spiritually Transformative Experiences
- Out-of-Body Experiences
- Death Bed Visions
- After-Death Communications

---

NDEs & Hell

http://the-formula.org/ndes-hell/

Shared Death Experiences

http://the-formula.org/shared-death-experiences/

When Loved Ones & Friends Pass From This World To The Next

http://the-formula.org/when-loved-ones-friends-pass-from-this-world-to-the-next/
5. The Formula for Creating Heaven on Earth

So let’s start putting all the pieces together now. We’ll begin with the two great themes that Dr. Jan Holden identified: loving and learning.

In order to be happy and healthy, we need to incorporate both vertical and horizontal perspectives into our lives.

In Dr. Jeffrey Long’s study of 1,300 NDEs, 65% described encountering “a mystical or brilliant light.”

Only 22% reported a life review.

People who experience life reviews often receive valuable information that is not included in experiences with The Light.

For example, people who experience life reviews can be shown why they chose to come to Earth, why being here is important, what their purpose is, and why their life has unfolded the way it has.
When it comes to being in this world, this is very helpful information!

The problem with getting too much Light and Love, and not enough life-review-like grounding perspectives, is that we don't want to be in this world.

Here's one sobering statistic that suggests many near-death experiencers don't understand the value of this world and why they were sent back:

Some NDE studies indicate that 21% of NDErs attempt suicide within 15 years of their experience.

Near-death experiencers who are forced to return to this world often feel angry at God, or disgust with themselves because they feel they were "kicked out of heaven."

Many also report arguing and having fits "like little children" when they are told that they must return.

Would people calm down and be more willing to return to this world if they understood why coming here is important?

Yes.

And many do after they are shown.

Some near-death experiencers resonate so deeply with The Light that they ignore, neglect, and disown the human side of their natures.

Knowing that the world isn't real, that our bodies are illusions, and that the created universe is a dream, they embark on a path of self-denial, self-gratification, or self-destruction.

Bottom Line:

Understanding and incorporating horizontal, life-review-like perspectives into our lives are extremely important.

It is also extremely important to ground and incorporate vertical perspectives into our life.

To summarize:

Thoughts and actions that are overly materialistic, selfish, and self-centered, that deny the existence of God and spiritual realities, that over-emphasize worldly concerns, can pave the way for very unpleasant experiences.
Thoughts and actions that over-emphasize spiritual realities, that focus excessively on waking up and leaving this world, that under-emphasize the importance of forming healthy relationships with other human beings and the rest of life, can also pave the way for very challenging experiences.

We are like eco-systems.

In order to be healthy, all the different aspects of ourselves need to be acknowledged, cared for, and working together.

When we over or under emphasize some aspects of ourselves at the expense of other aspects disharmony and dis-ease soon follow.

Many NDErs report that their lives, personalities, careers, relationships, and perspectives on life are completely changed by their experiences.

Many also experience healings of all kinds.

Many return with spiritual gifts and abilities.

These transformative experiences do not, however, magically transform us into perfect beings.

If we were immature, undeveloped, and dysfunctional before our spiritual experience, we'll be immature, undeveloped and dysfunctional after the razzle dazzle of our experience wears off.

Bottom Line:

While spiritual experiences provide a vision of where we are headed and practical tools to help us get there, we can't sustain these experiences until we have built a consciousness that can ground and contain them.

Here are comments from four near-death experiencers that illustrate the challenges that many NDErs face:

NDEr Amphianda Baskett (quote):

"One of the issues I’ve had for years and years since is that I get really frustrated that I can’t feel God on command in every situation anymore. I don’t live in bliss all the time like I did after my NDE. This ‘failing’ of mine has caused me a lot of distress. I couldn’t make sense of why I would be given such a vision, such an experience, such a profound awakening, only to lose it, or have it yanked away, leaving me only with a memory of what I used to know and live and feel..."
NDEr Howard Storm (quote):

“After my near-death experience, I wrongly assumed that I was going to be a saint. That I would not have a temper, anger, or lust, or make mistakes at all. That somehow I had been elevated to this superior person. To my horror, I found out that wasn’t the case at all.”

NDEr Amy Call (quote):

“I still struggle with my own worldly and personal issues. I only feel more Awakened and Conscious, with some abilities and understanding that have increased.”

NDEr Barbara Harris Whitfield (quote):

“My NDE left me with the knowledge that my life was a sham! My relationships -- pretend. I’ve spent 40 years since then being open and willing to learn more about my self, others, and the God of my Understanding.”

Near-death experiences teach us that we have to do the hard work of building containers for the Divine. And we have to do this without skipping steps, taking shortcuts, or hoping fairy godmothers zap all our problems away with magic wands.

One of the ways we learn this lesson is by getting sent back again and again until we understand The Program and master it.

Building containers for the Divine?

NDEr Alon Anava (video):

“I felt like trillions of billions of gigabytes of information being downloaded to me. Let me make it a little bit more clear. Imagine a computer; imagine a laptop; a little piece of metal that is worth a hundred dollars. It’s nothing. It’s a piece of metal. You just take a wire. Connect the laptop to the wire. Connect the wire to the wall. And within a split second this little piece of metal that is worthless has access to all the information in the world within a split second using the internet. One press of a button, any type of search you will make that little piece of metal, that computer, has access to get information through the internet -- any type of information. I felt like I’m this little entity being connected to the MAIN mother source of information. I can’t even say internet. But the MAIN source of information. And it’s as if endless amount of information is being downloaded to me simultaneously. This is what it was. I was able to see God’s wisdom and derive not normal pleasure for me. There’s no words to describe that pleasure. I get lots of questions about what did you see? What do you mean you saw God’s wisdom. What are the secrets of the universe? There’s really no words to put it in... It’s just understanding something that is beyond what our mind can understand. Our mind is limits. And this is limitless. Something limited cannot understand something limitless.

“As this whole process of the downloading of the information -- first of all, nothing stayed. I wasn’t able, I didn’t have the ability to hold it; I didn’t have the ability to sustain it. It just washed me. I didn’t have the vessel to actually hold that information. As it was going, as pleasurable as it was, there was also a tremendous feeling of the opposite of pleasure that I can’t hold it, that I can’t sustain it, that I can’t grasp it and keep it. It says in many sources that our acts in this world create that spiritual vessel that when our soul leaves the body it has the tool to actually hold that Godly life, to hold that Godly revelation, to be able to hold that Godly wisdom. I wasn’t able to hold it. I was able to see it. I was able to enjoy it. But I wasn’t able to hold it. So simultaneously it was a tremendous feel of pleasure and at the same time this very strong feeling of the opposite of pleasure. I really don’t know how to define it. It wasn’t really sorrow. It was a feeling that I can’t keep it. Almost like taking a little kid to a toy store and letting him run there and at the end of it, telling him, ‘OK, now we have to go home and you can’t keep any of the toys. You have to leave all the toys here. Now it’s time to go home.’”

Ryan Rampton (video):

"The other thing was feeling like I was not even human anymore, that I had been changed somehow into this spiritual being that walks through life and would look up at the sky and see the trees and feel this amazing, amazing love that God has. It was permeating EVERYTHING. It was in the rocks. It was in the trees and I could feel it. I walked around in this bliss cloud for two weeks just knowing God and feeling His love so profound. And then it started to fade and I kind of freaked out and I started to pray: 'Heavenly Father, why, why are you pulling away? Am I not being good enough? Is something wrong?'

"And He said, 'Ryan, I’ve carried you for two weeks. Now I am walking beside you. You need to learn and reach out and learn how to bring me into you. And how to encourage that relationship that we have we each other.'

"And so that was the next part of my journey..."

So how, exactly, do we build a consciousness that can contain and embody the Divine?

How do we reach up to God and learn how to bring this Force fully into our life?

The human side of our nature is like a colander.

The less developed we are, the more holes we have; the more developed we are, the fewer holes we have. The holes represent lack of development, defects in character, unresolved shadow issues, everything that is not perfect about our human natures.
The way we build solid containers for the Divine, the way we are able to experience the Divine and never lose our connection with It, is through learning to be in loving relationship with all of life.

This means we need to be in loving, conscious relationship with everyone and everything: with our bodies, our minds, our emotions, our environment, the food we eat, plants and animals, our neighbors, our enemies, and, of course, the unseen spiritual forces of life.

The more loving relationships we form, the more we experience God, and the greater our ability to sustain that connection.

How are these ideas applied in real life? Watch "Groundhog Day."

Bill Murray's character, Phil Connors, transforms from an arrogant and egocentric TV weatherman into a Christ figure. And he does it, true to life, in the same sloppy, humorous, convoluted way that most of us do.

Being genuinely present and treating everyone and everything we meet with love and compassion is the path championed by near-death experiences.

The ultimate goal is to bring Heaven to Earth; to transform all of us and the world we share into perfect embodiments of the Divine.

When we put everything together that I have shared with you today what emerges is a philosophy for creating Heaven on Earth. The Formula for Creating Heaven on Earth is an attempt to wrestle this information into concrete practices that can be used to transform our lives and world. The current version of The Formula is an early, primitive model. It is continuing to evolve as new information emerges and our understanding deepens.
6. Final Words

Unlike spiritual paths that arose from the ideas and inner experiences of lone, isolated human beings, the path presented by near-death experiences is emerging as a direct, grassroots revelation that millions of people from all over the world are receiving and sharing. If we explore this newly emerging path deeply enough, we discover that all religions, philosophies, and cultures are honored; that science and spirituality are celebrated; that both the human and spiritual side of our natures are cherished and embraced. In short, near-death experiences present us with a universal, all-inclusive, perfectly integrated spiritual path that revolves around three core truths:

1. We are all one.

2. Love is the essence of life.

3. We are here, in this world, to become perfect embodiments of the Divine.

7. Additional Resources & References

Additional Resources & References
http://the-formula.org/resources/what-near-death-experiences-teach-us/